

Whole Farm/Ranch Land Management in Oklahoma

Reconciling Production with Land Health and Restoration

grow

As a farmer, rancher or land steward, you know that one of your greatest assets is the land you work with, and managing that land can be tough due to weather conditions, environmental pressures and high input costs. HMI's Whole Farm/Ranch Land Management program is designed to educate participants in how nature functions and how producers can improve agricultural practices to increase their land's productivity and resilience in good times and bad.

Registration:

Space is limited so register today!

$250 per person.
Scholarships are available.

Scholarship deadline: October 7, 2016
Registration closes: October 17, 2016

You Will Learn:

- How practicing Holistic Management leads to better decision-making and more effective planning skills to build resilience and improve habitat for livestock and wildlife
- How the water cycle functions and how participants can improve the water-holding capacity of the soil
- How participants can use grazing and animal impact on their farm or ranch to improve soil and forage stands, with consideration of wildlife needs
- How participants can create infrastructure and development strategies to create more profit for their operations and create resilient landscapes through improved management practices
- When and how to destock and graze at appropriate times for optimum production
- How to manage a farm or ranch more effectively given the land base they are working with and the potential markets they can serve

Cost and Financial Assistance:

Due to grant funding, the cost for this program (valued at $800) is $250 per person with advanced online registration. Walk-in registration is $300 per person, if space is available.

If you need financial assistance, a limited number of full and partial scholarships are also available.

Meals and lodging are not included in the registration fee. You may bring a sack lunch if you wish.
